University of Texas

THESE MEN, standing here so rigidly at attention, make up Texas' Naval College Training program, one of the largest in the country. These eleven hundred men form an integral part of the student body and have helped the University keep its program on even keel. The men in the R.O.T.C., selected from the regular student body, and those in the V-12 unit have shown spirit and interest in the University, which is proud to be exclusively a Naval School.

Navy in Review.

The Naval Flight Preparatory School, although almost as large, has a rapid turnover, but their rows of campaign ribbons make the war more real to us on the campus.

CAPTAIN J. J. LONDON, USN (ret.)

THIS THIRD WAR-TIME EDITION OF THE CACTUS, finds the Naval ROTC classes of 1944 and 1945 at this University, commissioned in the Navy. Each term trainees from the V-12 Unit, established July, 1943, are completing their allotted college semesters, and are being sent to Reserve Midshipmen Schools for commissioning as officers. Thus by means of the Naval ROTC and the V-12 Units, The University of Texas is maintaining its place in the first rank of Educational Institutions, in supplying officers for our Navy.
