NAVY R.O.T.C.

ROBERT A. KNAPP, CAPTAIN, USN
Professor of Naval Science

The Naval Reserve Officers' Training Corps was established at The University of Texas in 1940 and since that time has operated as the Department of Naval Science. Hundreds of Naval officers, trained in the unit, saw service in World War II.

The N.R.O.T.C. resumed its peacetime program in September, 1946, and is now training officers for the Regular Navy, the Marine Corps, and the Naval and Marine Corps Reserve. Regular students, those who are seeking commissions in the regular service, receive a Naval scholarship amounting to $600 a year plus books, tuition, and fees. They make three summer cruises, as do Midshipmen of the Naval Academy, and agree to serve two years on active duty after receiving their commissions. These students are selected through a national competitive examination.

Contract students are selected by the Professor of Naval Science and train for a commission in the Naval Reserve. Both contract and regular N.R.O.T.C. students are deferred from induction under the Selective Service Act as long as they remain in the Naval program.

The N.R.O.T.C. unit, numbering about two hundred students, now has three classes; freshmen, sophomores, and juniors. The new freshman class entering in September of this year will bring the Naval unit up to authorized strength of two hundred and seventy to three hundred students.
