

Missouri vs. Kentucky - 12/29/22

Venue - Mizzou Arena - Columbia, Mo.

Final Score: Mizzou 74, Kentucky 71

Attendance: 3258

- Mizzou collects its fifth win against Kentucky in program history, and the Tiger's first over the Wildcats since a 70-68 decision at the SEC Tournament in Greenville, S.C. on March 8, 2019.
- Missouri moves to 6-5 in SEC openers since joining the conference prior to the 2012-13 campaign.
- The Tigers are 7-0 this season when eclipsing 70 points.
- Mizzou overcame an opening period deficit yet again, moving to a perfect 3-0 on the season when trailing after the first quarter. The Tigers previously defeated UT Martin and UMass in the same fashion.
- The Tigers improved to 12-0 when leading entering the fourth quarter in 2022-23.
- Mizzou's 29-point second quarter on 55% three-point shooting tied the season high for points in a period, set in the third quarter of the Tiger's contest against Bradley on Nov. 10.
- Mizzou's 46.60% season field goal percentage is good for 24th in the nation. The Tiger's three-point field-goal percentage of 36.04% is 35th in the nation, aided by going 7-for-17 from behind the arc tonight.
- Mizzou dominated the glass, outrebounding Kentucky 41-27, the eighth time the Tigers have outrebounded their opponents this year.
- Eight different Tigers scored in the first half, showcased by Hansen and Judd collecting eight apiece.
- Three Tigers finished with double-digits in the scoring column, the eighth such occurrence in 14 games this season.
- Hayley Frank continues leading the Tiger's offensive attack by adding 20 points tonight, all of which came after the start of the second period. This was her fourth 20+ point outing of the season, and the third in five games.
- Sara-Rose Smith grabbed her 200th-career rebound in a game that saw her snag seven boards.
- Haley Troup made her 130th career appearance for Mizzou, one shy of the program-record 131 appearances Cindy Kiser made from 1976-80.
- Lauren Hansen added 18 points and six boards on 46% shooting. She has failed to register double-digit points just three times this season.
- Ashton Judd eclipsed the 100-point mark of her young career after tonight's 12-point outing.
- Katlyn Gilbert tied a season-high with four assists and set a new season high with four steals.
- Jayla Kelly's two blocks tied a season-high, last achieved versus Western Kentucky on Nov. 14. It was the fourth multi-block game of her career.
