

Mizzou Men's Basketball Post-Game Notes vs. Princeton

Golden1 Center - Sacramento, Calif.

Final Score: No. 15 Princeton 78, No. 7 Missouri 63

- Missouri led for only 32 seconds of the game.
- The Tigers dropped to 23-29 in 29 NCAA Tournament appearances.
- Mizzou is 7-8 during the second round of the NCAA Tournament with its last win coming against Marquette in 2009, 83-79.
- Princeton picked up its first win in the all-time series, which Mizzou leads 2-1.
- Princeton's win snapped Mizzou's seven-game win streak over Ivy League foes.
- The Tigers shot 41%, moving to 3-10 on the year when coming in under the 45% threshold.
- Princeton was + 14 in the battle of the boards (44-30) and converted 16 offensive rebounds into 19 second-chance points.
- Mizzou's nine turnovers forced were a season low.
- Mizzou made six three pointers, running its season total to 325, finishing one shy of tying the single-season school record (326 – set in 2001-02). The Tigers dropped to 1-7 on the year when making less than seven triples.
- The Tigers' 25 wins this season were their most in 11 years while Gates ranks fifth all-time among first-years, SEC coaches in inaugural campaign wins.
- DeAndre Gholston led the way with 19 points, his first time as Mizzou's leading scoring since he poured in 12 at Mississippi State on Feb. 4, 2023.
- Noah Carter (14) and Kobe Brown (12) also found double digits. Brown (7) and D'Moi Hodge (6) led the way on the boards.
- Kobe Brown had two triples, giving him 51 on the year, eclipsing his combined total of 49 from the past three seasons.
- Kobe Brown and D'Moi Hodge had combined to average 31.0 mpg on the season, but only accounted for 14 points tonight - 12 by Brown and 2 by Hodge.
- D'Moi Hodge, who had been the Tigers leading scoring in five of the last six games, was held to just two points on a 1-for-6 shooting night. He spent several minutes on the bench in the second half after being shaken up following a dunk attempt.
