

Company Overview

What is Network Next?

Network Next is not just another network, it's a radically new way of linking networks together. A new internet where networks compete on performance and price to carry traffic.

Our technology connects application developers with thousands of private networks on a neutral marketplace, giving developers the best network performance at the best price.

Initially developed for games, Network Next is now also accelerating video chat.

Why Network Next?

Network Next puts the developer in control of the network. Now developers can specify the network performance they need and networks compete to satisfy their request — reducing latency, jitter and packet loss for users worldwide.
