This program examines the realities of how Parole, Probation, and Community Corrections Officers are most likely confronted, both in the office and in the field. It then provides tactics that officers can apply in these situations that will increase their ability to successfully avoid or control these situations. During this dynamic training program, officers will learn how to employ control tactics in a manner that will minimize the risk of injury to both the agent and the aggressor.

Instructor candidates will learn control techniques that are effective and appropriate at all levels of the use of force continuum. These techniques are based upon the Natural Response Control Tactics (N.R.C.T.) System™, which was specifically designed for Parole, Probation, and Community Corrections personnel. The techniques are designed to be quickly learned, easily applied and retained, and can be effectively applied by officers of varying size, strength, experience and age, irrespective of gender.

The techniques are designed to add more tools to their toolbox, and provide them with techniques that, under stress, in a crisis, are easily retained and effectively applied. Techniques taught include:

Body mechanics and movement
Defending against blows
Distance and movement
Arm and leg strikes
Relative positioning
Control techniques

Assailant repositioning techniques
