The Law is Good

There are times when an activity's rules keep us from enjoying it like we should. For example, have you ever been to a hotel pool with a "NO DIVING ALLOWED" sign? Without fail someone breaks that rule. Can you really enjoy a swimming pool if you're not soaking everybody with the waves from your world-class cannonball? On the other hand, there are times when an activity's parameters actually increase our enjoyment of it. Just think, if you've never learned the rules of the piano—the scales, time signatures, or how to read music—your enjoyment of the instrument is severely limited. Maybe you can play "Chopsticks," but without learning the rules of music, you'll never know the joy of playing Chopin.

GOD'S LAW IN OUR LIVES

Which one of these examples best explains the function of God's law in our lives:

- Does the law keep us from behaviors that make life more enjoyable? or
- Can it actually enhance our joy?

When we look to Scripture, what we find might surprise you. Paul tells us "the law is good" (1 Tim. 1:18), and James describes it as the "law of liberty" (James 1:25; 2:12). So, though our obedience to it can never earn us a place in heaven (Rom. 3:20; Gal. 2:15–16), the law should be seen as serving a positive role in our lives. In fact, it reveals to us the lifestyle that God intends for his people to live. Of course, the law functions differently for believers today than it did for the Israelites in the Old Testament, and it has been fundamentally changed through the work and teaching of Jesus who rendered the sacrificial laws obsolete through his once-for-all death on the cross (Heb. 9). Nevertheless, we must strive to view the law positively.

One way to do that is by remembering this simple phrase: "Discipline without direction is drudgery."¹ God's law reveals to us the standard of living to which He calls us. Achieving perfection in this standard could never earn us God's favor or get us an extra "jewel in our crown," but it will lead to closer fellowship with Him as we walk in His way and not our own. In a sense, then, the righteousness that Jesus calls us to pursue is a righteousness that is embodied in obedience to Him.

If God's law was simply a set of regulations given by an absent deity, it would feel oppressive—on the order of a “NO DIVING ALLOWED” sign. But since it comes from a loving and compassionate God, it is purposeful. He gives us the law for our good as he remakes us into the image of the One who lived in perfect obedience to him, Jesus. In that way it truly is a law of liberty and something we should strive to live out as we pursue the goal for which we were created.

Encounter

Take a few minutes to read Galatians 5:13–26 in a couple of Bible translations. Make a note of any differences between the translations and anything that especially jumps out at you.

Reflect

In Galatians 5, Paul writes that “the whole Law is fulfilled in the statement, “You shall love your neighbor as yourself” (Gal. 5:14). Read Matthew 22:34–40. How does love for neighbor lead us to fulfill the whole law? Why does that require a willingness to defer our rights for another person (Gal. 5:13)?

The life God calls us to live begins by “walking by the Spirit” (Gal. 5:16), or living one's life according to His leadership. When we consistently do this, the behaviors of the sinful nature will no longer vanish from our lives. Think back to Sunday's sermon and read Gal 5:16–21. What “works of the flesh” are evident in your life? What can you do this week to make yourself more aware of the Spirit's availability to you?

Having explained how to avoid the “works of the flesh,” Paul describes what a life lived under the Spirit’s leadership and influence will look like (Gal. 5:22–23). Think back to Sunday’s sermon and read Gal 5:22–23.

What “fruits of the Spirit” are evident in your life? What can you do this week to pursue more of the Spirit’s fruit in your life?

Take a few moments to read Galatians 5:16–23 again. Think about the “big picture” of what Paul is getting at in this passage as he contrasts two distinct ways of living. Can you identify the current way you are living? How would your relationships be transformed if you began walking with the Spirit each day?

Examine

Based on 2 Timothy 3:16 (“All Scripture is breathed out by God and profitable for teaching, for reproof, for correction, and for training in righteousness”), this series of questions is intended to help you figure out what you should do or believe in response to this text. (This passage may not have a clear answer for each question. Just use them to prompt your thinking.)

1. What does this passage tell me to believe?

(How does it teach me?)

2. What does this passage tell me not to believe?

(How does it reprove me?)

3. How does this passage tell me not to live?

(How does it correct me?)

4. How does this passage tell me to live?

(How does it train me in righteousness?)

Embrace

After spending significant time with this passage, you've probably learned a lot and heard God speak to you through His Word. Look back at your responses to the previous questions and ask God to show you how you can respond to this text this week.

Write down some ideas for how you can respond to the truth of God's Word.

About The Map

The 30 Biblical Basics are the skeleton of a person being formed into the image of Jesus by His Spirit (Rom. 8:29; 2 Cor. 3:18), a helpful framework for the Christian's thoughts, actions, and character. As we commit ourselves to growing in Christ through the process of spiritual formation, we pray these statements become increasingly true of us. When they are, we'll be able to carry out the biblical mandate to "Love the Lord your God with all your heart and with all your soul and with all your strength and with all your mind"; and, "Love your neighbor as yourself" (Luke 10:27), and to truly love, live, and lead like Jesus.
