

Carole Samaha

Actress | singer | Lebanon

Carole Samaha is a talented Lebanese singer and actress who often sheds light on humanitarian issues throughout her work. Her singing career began in 2003 with the song "El Toufoula." Throughout the course of her career, Samaha has released several albums, a movie, and several musicals by Mansour Rahbani, including "The Last Days of Socrates," "Abu Al-Tayyib al-Mutanabbi," "Mulook El Tawaef," and "Zenobia."

In 2009, she founded her own production company called LACARAM. That same year, she released her fourth album titled "Hodoudy El Sama" and the Egyptian national song "El Masry Ya Abu Dam Hami."

Aside from singing, Samaha also has a knack for acting. She took part in the 2007 docu-series "Hawwa Fi Tarikh," playing Cleopatra.
