

Firass Jubrane

Program producer | Writer

Firass Jubrane began his career very early in his life. As a child, he would draw, read and write stories which he would sell to members of his family; he also wrote his own play during his school years. As he grew older, he enrolled at the Lebanese University, paid his own tuition, and worked at a radio station as a program producer, drew political caricature characters and wrote columns in newspapers, all before he graduated. He has since written his own TV series and has written the lyrics of a musical album.
