ADMIRAL SIR EDWARD CODRINGTON. Letter written and signed on 24 July 1827 at Smyrna. Edward Codrington was expecting a letter from Stratford Canning who was the envoy to Constantinople to obtain recognition of Greek independence after the signing of the Treaty of London (6 July 1827). The political fermentations & intrigues will lead few days after to the naval Battle of Navarino (20.10.1827) between the Ottoman & the Allied (British, , French & Russian) fleet.

“Smyrna 24 July 1827

I have found no letter but this for either you or me from Mr. Canning. The answer to the Turkish manifesto cannot come for some time. No Dartmouth as Martin reported, nor anything from England. Tablot got here this afternoon before us. Certainly keep an eye on ????? & tell your Greek friends to watch all his movements & ??? whom he communicates with. Our straight-forward ?? will beat the “intrigants” yet. It will do much good to prepare our Greek friends for the tricks of dear R. Provide? me the Greek papers in which Doctor Bailly may say anything.

Edw. Codrington (signature)

I have sent off the letter to Mr. Canning.”
