COMING ATTRACTIONS

THE FRONTEND OF INNOVATION (FEI) conference, May 18-20, 2015, in Boston is positioned to showcase the new breed of innovation leaders. Content will address how to truly generate momentum for the next generation of innovation culture leaders, business models, and structures and what it will take to dominate your industry. The answers today look a lot different from the answers a year ago, or even a few days ago.

Conference organizers have completely reimagined the entire FEI experience. With even bigger name keynotes, eight adventure learning sessions designed to get attendees behind the scenes of Boston's most innovative companies, the launch of the highly-anticipated Startup Lab, the 2nd annual power women panel, and FEI "unplugged."

Dennis Hong, associate professor and founding director of RoMeLa (Robotics & Mechanisms Laboratory) at UCLA, in his keynote address will share how robots are being used for research and education, firefighting, and disaster relief.

Lilly's Richard Ruth will uncover why innovation is challenging for so many of us, and offer up his take on Open Space Experiences that allow you to work through common challenges, create new connections, and build a framework to move forward together.

Attendees will hear from Merck as they discuss commercial innovation in emerging markets, Shire Pharmaceuticals' CTO on building an innovation culture that drives sustainable results, and Johnson & Johnson on giving employees a voice in driving change

Where global mAb ADC and next gen technology stakeholders meet to do business

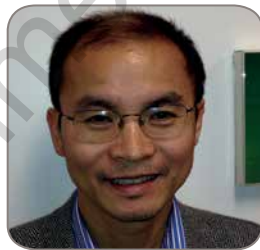

27 - 28 May 2015, Marriott San Diego Mission Valley, San Diego

The US is projected to be the largest single market for therapeutic mAbs from $20.1B in 2011 to to $27.4B by 2016. And although there have been a number of mAbs entering the market, high development costs and time-consuming R&D and clinical trials make it difficult to gain faster entry in the market.

Are you ready? Top biopharma gather to tackle common barriers to entering the US antibodies market such as high development costs, time-consuming R&D and lengthy clinical trials. Can you afford not to be there?
