

S2 Fig. Differences in the feet insertion depth between different bats (insectivorous vs. piscivorous) and target types (stationary vs. temporary). This feature was classified into three categories: touching the water with the toes (toes), insertion of half of the foot into the water (half foot) and submersion of more than half of the foot into the water (entire foot)

