Our cover star and her best friend treat themselves to a five-star Caribbean hideaway

MW: We went away for 10 days as we needed a break somewhere sunny and remote, where we could chill. At the last minute, we decided to go to Amanyara, in the Turks and Caicos Islands. We got the last two seats on the plane!

SM: It was a spontaneous decision. Some friends had stayed at Amanyara and loved it. We both felt like we wanted to be somewhere private and away from distractions so we could relax and catch up on sleep.

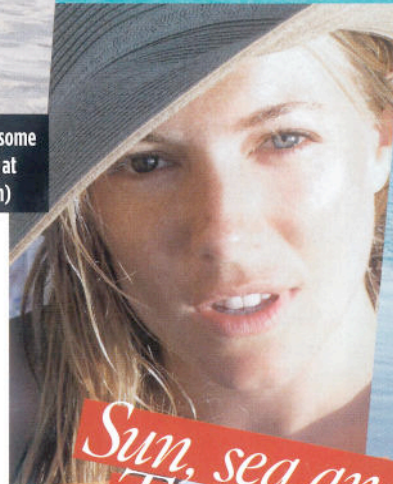

MW: Amanyara is the most idyllic, luxury getaway; it's an amazing place to unwind. We stayed in an incredible villa with huge windows overlooking the Caribbean. Every day, we'd wake up and take a dip in the black-slate infinity pool next to our villa. I spent most of the time swimming and sunbathing.

SM: I don't think I've stayed anywhere quite so luxurious. Understated elegance, amazing service, the biggest, comfiest beds and the most idyllic location... Powder-white sand and turquoise sea on our doorstep... It was really laid-back – swimming, sunbathing and eating. I read Gabriel Garcia Marquez's One Hundred Years of Solitude and a book by Woody Allen called The Insanity Defense, and I had a couple of massages in the spa. I probably only left the villa once, on a day trip on a boat around the other cays.

MW: It was the first time we've been on holiday together, so it was a real treat. We had the best time. We're quite similar and get along really well.

SM: We're already planning our next holiday!
