

ARCHETYPES teaser

(radio fuzz)

(ethereal music fades up)

Male Voice 1: She's a slut!

[laughter]

Female Voice 1: People think I should be quiet and submissive—

Male Voice 2: —and a little emotionally unstable.

Male Voice 3: Do you have the word “skanky” in America?

Female Voice 2: We do have that word.

Male Voice 4: I was waiting for you to smile at some of the compliments and you didn't.

Male Voice 5: They are weaker, smaller, they are less intelligent.

(clapping begins)

Meghan: This is how we talk about women: the words that raise our girls, and how the media reflects women back to us.

(camera shutters)

Female Voice 3: Stop following me!

Meghan: But where do these stereotypes come from? And how do they keep showing up and defining our lives?

[ethereal music fades out]

[upbeat music drops]

Meghan: I'm Meghan, and this is Archetypes: the podcast where we dissect, explore, and subvert the labels that try to hold women back. I'll have conversations with women who know all too well how these typecasts shape our narratives. And, I'll talk to historians to understand how we even got here in the first place. Archetypes. Coming soon. Listen only on Spotify.

[upbeat music fades out]

—End—