Salenko Polina was born in 2002 into a family of artists in Poltava, Ukraine, where she currently lives. She works as an independent artist and curator.

Prefers traditional painting and graphic techniques, uses acrylic and oil paints, as well as fountain pens. Drawing is the artist's main spoken language, while painting is already an official-business style of dialogue. Salenko's inspiration comes from the past, present and imaginary. Through her works, the artist conveys her personal worldview, using symbolic motifs and images to express the complex relationships between the material and the immaterial, the organic and the artificial, the human and the sacred. In her works, Salenko speaks about what is present everywhere: in the living and the inanimate. About the soul and its manifestation in our environment.
