Why Change Management Doesn't Work in 2023 and Beyond

Today's IT leaders are being pulled in too many directions: drive transformation, react to AI and cybersecurity threats, compete for talent, have a crystal ball for economic forces, solve business needs in the strategic plan, etc. etc. You have competing commitments and concerns knocking on your door every day. How do you and your team continue to deliver for today's needs while also proactively planning for the future?

Leadership and change management is no longer enough. During this webinar, Stefanie Krievins will share a simple yet multi-layered approach to thinking about change, leadership, communications, and project management that creates order out of chaos, calms emotions, and brings innovation. You'll learn 3 simple tools you can put into practice as soon as this webinar is over.

Bio:

Stefanie Krievins (pronounced Kr-evans, like Evans) is a trained coach and facilitator with experience in HR consulting and business coaching. She is the host of the Hot Mess Hotline, a podcast for ambitious leaders who want to drive impactful change. She's the creator of The Change Architecture which provides a new framework for driving transformation in the 21st century.

She has collaborated with organizations from 5 to 50,000 employees in all sectors to create and implement strategic plans, change readiness assessments, and leadership development programs.

Her coach training is in solution-focused methodology from Erickson International and she's a member of the International Coach Federation. She also holds a Master's degree and has worked in small business and regional and national nonprofits before starting her business in 2014.
