

Dr Elissa Abrams, MD, MPH, FRCPC

Associate Professor, Department of Pediatrics, Section of Allergy and Clinical Immunology, University of Manitoba
Adjunct Professor, Department of Pediatrics, Division of Allergy and Immunology, University of British Columbia
(204)560-6231

POLLEN AVOIDANCE MEASURES

- There is no way to completely avoid pollens
- During peak pollen counts keep the windows of the home and car closed
- If air conditioning is available it can be helpful
- If a clothes dryer is available it is preferable to drying clothes outside
- Avoid play outside during peak hours (morning)
- Avoid cutting the grass or doing work in the yard