

Privacy Policy

The Steve DeAngelis Community Fund is committed to preserving your privacy and safeguarding your information online. The general information-gathering and usage practices of our web site are:

When you visit this site, you are not required to provide any personal information unless you choose to do so. Our web server will recognize the domain name/IP address from which you are accessing this Site and certain other technical facts (such as the operating system and web browser that you are using), but not your e-mail address or other personally identifying information.

We will not collect personally identifiable information unless you voluntarily send an e-mail message or fill out and send an online form. Your choice not to participate in these activities will not impair your ability to browse, though it may impair your ability to access certain information online.

Credit Card Transactions

The Steve DeAngelis Community Fund does not sell or trade names or other personal data that we collect on our web site or hold in our database. We do not maintain any credit card information. Credit card donations through our web site are processed exclusively by Clover.com. Clover is committed to providing safe, secure and private online transactions. For further details about their privacy practices, please consult their privacy policy directly.

When you make a donation to us through the DonateNow button on our web site, Clover.com shares your contact information (name, address, and email address) with us. We maintain this information in our database of supporters in order to keep you abreast of our future work and related issues that may be of interest to you. You may also receive our newsletter. If you do not want to receive materials from us, you can email us at stevedcommunityfund@gmail.com