

Microplastic pollution
has been detected in human blood for the first time, with
scientists finding the
tiny particles in almost 80% of the people tested.

