The Advent Wreath

One of the most beautiful customs of Advent is the creation of the Advent wreath, and the burning of the candles. By the sixteenth century Catholics and Protestants throughout Germany used these Symbols to celebrate their Advent hope in Christ, the everlasting Light. From Germany the use of the Advent wreath spread to other parts of the Christian world. Traditionally, the wreath is made of four candles in a circle of evergreens. Each week, the candles are lighted-one candle the first week, and then another each succeeding week until December 25th. The candles represent the light which came into a world of darkness. In the candlelight, the congregation prays together in preparation for Christmas-the time when the true "light of the world" will come.

The Tradition

The practice of decoration homes and churches with flowers and plants dates back to the ancient days of Egypt. References to wreaths and garlands of leaves and flowers appear in the folklore and literature of all nations. Early Christians were forbidden by the church leaders to use fruits and flowers for decoration, because the practice was considered to be an un-Christian, pagan rite. However, in 1600, St. Augustine of Canterbury was advised by the Pope to permit the use of flowers within the church. Since then, flowers have flourished as decorations in Christian homes and Churches.

The Poinsettia

A colorful, tropical plant, the poinsettia is now recognized as one of the most cherished Christmas emblems. When Dr. Joel Roberts Poinsett, our first ambassador to Mexico, discovered the distinctive flower, called by the Latin Americans Flor de la Noche Buena(Which means, "Flower of the Holy Night"), he was delighted. Its rich red and green coloring make this plant a most appropriate Christmas decoration.

The Christmas Tree

Of all the Christmas symbols, perhaps none is more familiar than the Christmas tree. Decorating the is one of the most beloved of Christmas customs, and prevails wherever trees are available. History dates the customs of decorating trees for Christmas as early as 1521. Tradition holds that Martin Luther may have been the first to use an evergreen. The story says that, as he walked home through the forest one night, the full moon shone on the snow-laden branches of the trees. So entranced by their beauty was Luther, that he quickly cut down a small tree, took it home, and placed tiny lighted candles on the branches in order that his family might enjoy some measure of the splendor he had witnessed. The fir tree has been almost universally accepted as the Christmas tree. This is particularly appropriate because the end of each branch forms a tiny cross and the stately tree points up-

The Evergreens

Well before the Christian era, evergreens were used as an emblem of eternal life. For, although the cold winter weather killed most plants, evergreens remained, symbols of summer and life. It is said that in early Christian festival processions apples and rosemary were carried, typifying humanity's fall and God's redemption. At Christmas, greens were used, not only for decoration, but to emphasize the nativity notion that the child born in Bethlehem was both God and man "who would spring up like a tender plant, should always be green and flourish, and live evermore".

The Holly and the Ivy

Holly and ivy are also popular forms of decoration at Christmas. Among the ancient Romans, laurel was an emblem of peace and joy, as well as victory. The Christians placed it in their windows to indicate that Christ had entered their home. In old England and France, the holly and ivy took the place of the laurel. Holly with its shiny green leaves and bright red berries, has a special significance at Christmas. Some scholars believe that the name "holly" is derived from the word "holy". They base their assumption on the holly's long association with sacred religious rites. With the holly and the ivy this morning, we include an olive branch: a common symbol of peace.

The Mistletoe

Another favorite Christmas green is mistletoe. Mistletoe is a parasitic plant, growing only on other trees-totally dependent on them for existence. We have chosen mistletoe for part of our flower arrangement to remind us of our dependence on God. The arrangement also includes, three red roses, representing the love of God the Father, Son and Holy Spirit

The Legend of the Christmas Rose

Listen now to the Legend of the Christmas Rose: As the wise men from the East, brought forth their gifts of gold, frankincense and myrrh, a shepherd girl, watching from afar wept because she had no gift to offer the Christ child. As her tears fell to the ground, flowers sprang up, which she gathered and hastened to bring to the infant. In adoration, she knelt at the manger, so Jesus could see her gift, and when his hands touched the flowers, their petals turned to a delicate pink. And so a flower that never bloomed before, came into existence- the Christmas Rose.
