NALGAI

(Boselaphus tragocamelus)

HUNT free ranging NILGAI in low fence. One on one guided hunts on a coastal plains ranch in South Texas. Nilgai are the hardest to hunt and the toughest to kill of any animal on the North American continent (600-800 pounds.) Many who have hunted in Africa compare Nilgai to Cape buffalo in difficulty to kill. The meat is high on the list of desirable game meat. Many people with cholesterol problems choose to include Nilgai meat in their diet because it has a very low cholesterol count. Hunting Nilgai is addicting if you appreciate "the Hunt".

With 1 day hunts, if the hunter chooses to hunt an extra day, the fee will equal the 2 day hunt cost (providing the guide is available). Alcoholic beverages are not provided.

Our goal is to make your hunt a most rewarding, comfortable and pleasurable experience. Accommodations are not on site but, are very nearby and extremely comfortable with meals that are second to none. This is a spot and stalk hunt! There is no sitting around in a blind waiting for these animals to come to you. This is a challenging yet very rewarding hunt. Once you have been on a Nilgai hunt, all else fails to compare.

We require that you bring a Caliber of 300 mag. or better and note that a back up shot will be provided (if absolutely needed). Practice your shooting, practice your breathing and you will do fine. You will find that practice will pay off. Choose a bullet that will provide the largest wound channel possible. Check with your gun or bullet dealer and let them help you.

"I saw more mature bulls on the first afternoon hunting than I had seen total Nilgai (bulls, cows, calves) in all my previous hunts combined. I was able to anchor a very fine bull the first afternoon. The hunting method, abundance of game, scenery and excellent guiding became addictive. On the second day I couldn't stand it anymore and purchased a "second animal" hunt ... a Nilgai cow. The hunt was on again, and after an even more challenging stalk than the first day, I was able to drop a cow.

Guides are very professional and work hard to ensure you have a quality hunt. The number of free ranging Nilgai on this vast stretch of land is hard to believe. I can strongly recommend the outfitter and I will return". -- "In a nut shell, if you want to hunt a really good Nilgai bull, on a beautiful ranch, this is the hunt for you. I can promise you that you will not be disappointed". - Wes Reagan
