

THE DAILY CHRONICLE

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 29, 2023

On This Date

1871 – Queen Victoria opened the Royal Albert Hall in London, England. Many of the world’s leading artists have appeared on its stage, and it has become one of the United Kingdom’s most treasured and distinctive buildings.

1993 – Catherine Callbeck won the general election to become the premier of Prince Edward Island, marking the first time a woman was elected premier of a Canadian province. Today she serves as the chancellor of Prince Edward Island University.

Did You Know?

Walt Frazier earned the nicknamed “Clyde” during his rookie year with the Knicks because he often wore a fedora like the one Warren Beatty wore in Bonnie and Clyde (1967).

Quote of the Day

“The star player must slay his ego and learn teamwork and communication skills before he can achieve the ultimate in sport.”

~ Walt Frazier

Happy Birthday!

Walt “Clyde” Frazier, born in 1945, is a legendary American NBA star who played point guard for the New York Knicks, leading them to victory in two NBA Championships in 1970 and in 1973. Frazier retired in 1979 and now works as a broadcast analyst for Knicks games. He is known for his stylish, colorful suits and turns of phrase. He was named to the NBA 75th Anniversary Team in 2021, recognized as one of the best NBA players in history. Frazier was inducted into the Naismith Memorial Basketball Hall of Fame as both a player in 1987 and as a broadcaster in 2022.

