

THE DAILY CHRONICLE

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 3, 2020

On This Date

1925 – The silent film The Gold Rush, inspired by the Klondike rush and starring Charlie Chaplin, played to record-breaking crowds at Winnipeg’s Capitol Theatre.

1927 – The first transatlantic telephone service to the U.K. was launched when Canadian Prime Minister William Lyon Mackenzie King called British Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin.

1990 – East and West Germany were officially reunified. The country had been divided by a wall since the end of World War II.

Daily Trivia

Virtually all the gold that has been mined throughout history is still in existence in the aboveground stock. That means that if you have a gold ring, some of the gold in that ring could have been mined by the Romans 2,000 years ago.

Quote of the Day

“If having a soul means being able to feel love and loyalty and gratitude, then animals are better off than a lot of humans.”

Happy Birthday!

James Herriot (1916–1995) is the pen name of James Alfred Wight, a British veterinary surgeon and writer who penned more than 20 semi-autobiographical books about animals and their owners. Herriot didn’t start writing until age 50. His works are loved for their focus on the relationships between people and animals. Some of his most popular works include All Creatures Great and Small and If Only They Could Talk. His books have been turned into television and stage productions.
