

Meet Danielle

Danielle Baker is an Author, a Registered Early Childhood Educator (RECCE), a College Professor and a Rapid Transformation Therapy Practitioner (RTTP).

She has worked with children and their families for over 20 years. She has started her journey as an Early Childhood Educator, working with children from the age of 18 months to 14 years old. As part of her vision for her professional development, she has received extensive training in child development, as well as genetic, cognitive and behavioural disorders.

This has led her to work as a Child Care Supervisor for over 12 years. Seeing the need to provide educators and parents with more resources to ease their burden in caring for small children, she began to teach Early Childhood Development in College. With the challenges of imposed budget cuts and lack of funding in the Education System, Danielle took her career path towards therapy in order to have a more direct impact in helping children with special requirements and supporting the families who now found themselves caring for a child who has been tagged as “difficult”.

From this experience, Danielle quickly realized that some changes needed to be made within the Education Sector to enable our children to develop to their full potential.

As her mission to help children and their families became more clear, Danielle founded a unique on-line training centre, Being Connected, which offers workshops, courses and resources for parents, children and educators to add to their professional and personal development. Creating a fun learning environment, where individuals can feel safe to be themselves and learn in their own unique way, whilst bringing the focus back on what really matters.

When Danielle is not working to make the world a better place, you can find her nagging her grown boys to get up for school in the morning and taking time to have a nice walk in nature.
