

PWC National Mentor Program

The PWC National Mentor Program is in its second decade of being a fully volunteer run program. It is open to all FAA employees at any point in their career and at any grade level. Those in the local commuting area of Washington D.C. benefit from in person participation. Others are welcome to join via teleconference. Whether you are new to the FAA or a seasoned employee, the PWC National Mentor Program might be what you need!

The purpose of PWC National Mentor Program is to promote a culture within FAA that actively supports and provides development opportunities for FAA employees. With an increased commitment of individual workers, together we enhance our professional skills and have a better-prepared, better trained, safer, diverse workforce.

PWC National Mentor Program helps

- ~ Develop future leadership and plan for succession
- ~ Create a legacy of knowledge sharing and ignite a spark in others, while building alliances and refreshing organizational savvy
- ~ Develop and/or improve competencies, skills and abilities of program participants

Mentee Benefits

A mentor can provide you with:

- ~Support for developing a roadmap to accomplish your professional goals and offers a mirror for insight and assistance with personal and professional paths
- ~Expansion of your professional network; and
- ~Feedback and encouragement to enhance your performance and value to FAA.

Mentor Benefits

As a mentor you can:

- ~Experience the satisfaction inherent in supporting the professional development of others.
- ~Demonstrate and expand your skills in developing talent at the FAA; and
- ~Transfer your experience and expertise to others to make the FAA a better and stronger organization.
- ~Foster organizational excellence through knowledge sharing, knowledge management, and leadership development.

All previous participants are encouraged to restart or continue their efforts in supporting the PWC National Mentor Program. If you need assistance or are interested in participating in the program, please contact Lynette McSpadden via email at lynette.m.jamison@faa.gov.
