Trisha Cummings began her journey towards air traffic control by getting an Associate Degree in Aviation Science (CTI Degree) from Mt San Antonio College in 2008. During the long wait to get hired by the FAA, Trisha achieved two additional college degrees; Associate Degree in Commercial Flight from Mt San Antonio College and Bachelor of Science in Aviation Management from Southern Illinois University, Carbondale. Trisha has been a member of PWC since 2007 and was awarded two PWC scholarships to help her pay for her education. Finally after a long wait, in January 2011, Trisha was sent to the Academy in Oklahoma City and after successful completion reported to Los Angeles ARTCC. She joined NATCA on day one at ZLA and has tried to stay involved by volunteering for numerous SME opportunities including the Southern California Metroplex Redesign and is currently a member of ZLA's Local Safety Council. As previously mentioned, Trisha has been a PWC member since 2007 and has been on the annual training conference committee (hospitality suite) since 2013 and has volunteered to be on scholarship selection committees for the last few years as well. Outside of work, Trisha is a huge sports fanatic: GO Cubs GO!! Bear down Chicago Bears!! Fight On USC!! If they are not watching or at a game, Trisha and her fiancé enjoy travelling, hiking, camping, and the pursuit of the $100 hamburger.
