Western-Pacific Director (CA/AZ/NV/HI) pwcinc.wp@gmail.com

Micah Freeman began her FAA career at the Academy in October of 2009 and found herself settling in at her new facility of Atlanta Air Route Traffic Control Center. As many know Atlanta ARTCC is the busiest center in the world and is comprised of 7 areas, which Micah works in area 4. As a proud member of NATCA, she attends the Communicating for Safety conferences to learn about the impact of safety on her profession from others in her line of business as well as others involved in the NAS. Micah became interested in becoming a member of the PWC Board of Directors because she wanted to bring a young perspective to the table. Her passion is to see more of the younger generations of controllers get involved, because it is this workforce that will be affected for the next 10-20 years.
