Please visit www.formationreimagined.org and click the praying hands image at the top of the screen. Once you sign up to lead, you will receive a confirmation email with complete details. No registration is necessary for families who simply wish to join in prayer each week at 7:30 pm. ## REFLECTION FROM FR. RALPH

Last Friday, after the 5:30 pm Mass, a parishioner and I were speaking about the new renovation of the sanctuary of the parish and we noticed that with all the Christmas decorations taken down and put away the sanctuary looked less colorful and bright; and we admitted to each other that though the new renovation has produced excellent results (special thanks to Fr. Mirek is in order) we miss the beautiful Nativity Scene that we enjoy at this time of year here at St. Thomas Parish.

Now that the Christmas gifts are unwrapped, the lights and decorations are put away, and as we begin a new year, resuming with the way of life we had before (admittedly entirely unique when compared to the same time last year), and as we begin to worship and pray in our parish during what is called ‘ordinary time,’ it seems to me that in all likelihood we can honestly say that we are just the same living in extraordinary times.

So much has changed since the same time last year, and how we work, run errands, recreate, associate with family and friends; and what we hear, read and experience on cable news, the internet, social media and print are unlike what we once knew, and well beyond what any of us could have imagined.

From a liturgical point of view, inclusive of how we worship, the scriptures we hear at Mass, the prayers we say, and the music we enjoy have shifted from the anticipation and hope of the birth of Christ to a more basic yet essential reminder of all that we know regarding Divine Revelation and the Catholic Faith, and this will continue to the beginning of Lent.

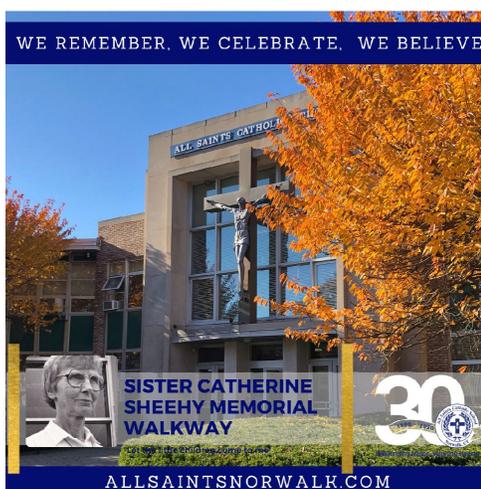

Now, in regard to the Sacred Mysteries of redemption and how we understand them and how we strive, live, and worship as Catholics, can we honestly say that we are in what we call “ordinary time”? The readings may seem the same as before, the prayers may seem the same as before, and the music may seem the same as before, and none of them will specifically mention the incarnation and the birth of Christ with angels at work throughout; but we are not involved with anything ordinary.

In the first and second readings for this weekend we can see that we are called to a new way of life according to the will of God; and this invitation, which having at its source God Himself, and therefore transcending all else in the way of time and place, is a personal one, and it far exceeds what we expect in regard to what is natural, human, cultural and domestic.

There is no intention on my part to either belittle or dismiss the circumstances in which we find ourselves, and this is inclusive of what knew, let’s say, this time last year, nor certainly, what we currently know and experience today. But we can see in the first reading that what God desires we realize about our lives requires discernment, and as it was with the prophet Samuel, as well as Andrew and John, what may seem as subtle as something we hear even while we sleep or in a simple conversation with Jesus Himself involves something that is anything other than ordinary.

Whether we find ourselves in the midst of ordinary times, extraordinary times, whether it involves what we now experience either at the grocery store or at Mass, it is for us, each of us, to follow after Christ in all things; and He will help us to more clearly recognize what we seek, and He will continue to invite us to walk with Him; and if we stay close to Jesus, He will show us what we seek in this life, ultimately for the sake of the life to come; and all we need do is listen to Him; at all times, at any time, with open hearts and minds as did Samuel the prophet saying: “speak Lord, your servant is listening.”

Fr. Ralph
