Introduction

The USPSF and POSA scoring system is broken down into two parts: The Artistic Section, and the Execution Section. Athletes will be judged in both sections during their routines; therefore, the athlete who shows the highest levels of both artistry and execution will be awarded the most points as a final score. The final score is a combination of the artistic section, and the technical and execution section. In addition to those two sections athletes will also be scored on appreciated elements and originality. It is important that the athlete incorporate all sections into their routine to be awarded the most points. This scoring system encourages and promotes a balance of highly artistic and technically sound athletes.

Listed is a short summary of what judges will be looking for in an athlete's routine, as a whole. A detailed description of the scored sections is included in this document to enable athletes to organize a performance and earn the highest score.
