

HELEN SANDERS

1-8-2021

NOW WHAT?

It seems for many people that they have lost all hope with the recent events in Washington, D.C. Many are disgusted with the President. Others are angry that an election was a sham and want to see justice done.

The Church is divided. Many are pro Black Lives Matter, while others are vehemently against it. If I were to take the spiritual temperature of the church instead of being hot, I would say it has become very "lukewarm" in the things of God. Instead of being about the Father's business, many have become so incensed with the political realm that they cannot stop talking about it.

Years ago, there was a trial of a well-known celebrity that supposedly killed his wife. A friend, who claimed to be a Christian, was glued to the television waiting to see this person prosecuted and put away for life. It was all that she could think about. She didn't talk about anything but this situation. She rarely talked about things of God because she had been consumed with this trial.

I think the same thing has happened this past year. People have become consumed playing the blame game for Covid19, the economy, the President and more drama, that we have lost our focus on what we are to do as Christians. We must get back to being what a Christian must be, a person that forgives others and shows those are lost that God has a plan for their lives.

The devil has run through our nation, destroying so much. Don't you think it is time to bring God back to the forefront in all we do? Arguing about political and medical things and conspiracies is not going to change a world. We must go forward. We can't continue to sit back. We must look to the one person that gives us hope, and that is Jesus Christ. He told us to make our "election" and call sure.

By the way, he also said the world would know we are Christians by our love. So, that is what we must do. We must love even those that are unlovable. We can make a difference. Regardless of who sits in the White House, Jesus has empowered us to walk in victory!