TAKE THE LEAD

The old saying that says, there are those that make things happen, then there are those that watch things happen, and then there are those that wondered what happened. We often laugh at this old saying, but there is a lot of truth in it. I truly believe that anyone that is truly called to be a leader has been born to be a leader. Everything in their lives that they have done will culminate into leadership.

That being said, there are those that aren't called to be leaders also. They watch what is going on, sometimes from a distance, but they support those that have been called to lead. They are a vital part of a leader's life, because to fulfill their call as leaders they need the undergird of support that only those that watch things happen can do. Those that watch have a keen sense of loyalty. They keep an eye on the camp to make sure that the enemy isn't coming through the door. They observe and support. That is what their life's training has prepared them for. It is a wonderful asset to have these kinds of people around. They don't try to take control of the leader; they watch and follow.

Then there are those that no matter what is going on they just don't see it. There could be a rocket go off and these people would not notice it. They are out of tune with the leader. They are out of tune with the watchers, and out of tune with God. They might think they are called to be a leader or a watcher, but they aren't. They have lost focus of life for various reasons. They can stir up trouble if they aren't kept at a distance.

If you are called to be a leader, whether man or woman then step into the role that God has prepared you for. Don't let anything deter it. Be confident that God has equipped you and will be with you in this role. Take the lead knowing God is trusting you to lead.
