“Our region is an economic engine with significant resources and infrastructure; we have incredible talent in our companies, universities, and government agencies. If these talents and this engine of the economy are not effectively put to use, we risk having them dissipated on less-than-optimal projects, with less-than-optimal results.”

Mr. Hession-Kunz earned a B.S. from the University of Massachusetts - Amherst, and an M.S. in finance from Boston College. Publications include articles in IEEE International Proceedings and NASA Tech Briefs. He has been quoted in the Wall Street Journal, Massachusetts High Tech, and the Boston Globe, among other publications.
