Hello, my name is Emma and I have been working as an English tutor at various institutions, from community college to 4 year universities, for 5 years. I am currently a PhD candidate studying at Texas Tech University and I still love tutoring! My long term goal is to teach at the community college level because I love the sense of community and diversity of people and perspectives, but I also feel at home tutoring kids from ages 12 and up. My hope is that I can help kids and adults who haven't had the best experience with English approach the subject in a way that makes sense to them, and to avoid making every lesson about how the student is doing something "wrong". As a poet it is my belief that there's a way for students to learn that they can only find themselves, and I am excited to help students on that journey.. Book a Free Trial Session with me Today!
