1 Meeting with the Light

My meeting with the great Light happened when I was a student of Architecture at the University of Gdansk. It had many common features with a typical NDE. The main difference was that I was healthy at the time when it started spontaneously during my sleep without any trauma or injury. I was woken up frightened by a nightmare, from there it progressed through stages: body paralysis, ejection from the body, passage through a rotating dark tunnel and finally observing my body from under the ceiling. It was clear that I had died, around me flowed a faint, silver shimmering cloud. After several unsuccessful attempts to reenter the body I finally gave up, sailed away through the building walls to the starry night sky, feeling desperate, cold and lonely. After some time I have noticed a light bigger than other stars with a pleasant vibration, I decided to move towards it.

The light grew quickly and soon engulfed me completely in a warm, golden-white glow, exceptionally bright but oddly enough not blinding. "This is the Light of the World, it is coming to my rescue", I thought assuming it was Jesus. There was a complete silence, blissful peace and joy. The Light reassured me emanating pure love, talking to me telepathically, I sensed the presence of my departed and living relatives. It was rather surprising that this wonderful Light is concerned about my well being. The great sense of humor was also unexpected. The Light asked: "Do you want to join me?", Yes, "Are you ready for it?" I had some concerns how mom will take death of her young son. After my hesitation the Light said: "I will help you to make a decision". The colorful 3D hologram of life review displayed in front of me, starting from the early childhood all the way to the moment of exit, with the Light continuous support. The message from the Light stressed the importance of reducing egoism, anger, extending empathy and love to all. There were a lot of unresolved issues in my life, it was obvious that more work to improve was necessary. After the review was over, there was a learning session. I observed physical objects as animate beings with a visible internal web of bluish veins of energies flowing and flashing through them. "Oh my God, even stones are alive", I exclaimed in amazement. At the end of the meeting the Light said telepathically: "you are never separate from me, go back to the body, you have a mission on Earth". As the great Light slowly disappeared, this statement was repeated to me several times. Unfortunately, I didn't get the answer to what kind of mission it might be, probably it was left for me to find out.

I have realized that the Light Being is my real parent, mother and father. It is not separate from me but I am an integral part with a critical role to fulfill. The Light was personally, deeply invested in my growth. I was directed back to the body, the reentry was very unpleasant, it felt like falling into a cold mud, being electrocuted by a high voltage current at the same time. I was initially sad, because of the separation, but with time I have gained a more positive outlook on life and completely lost a fear of death.

2 The Parent Star and Parent Soul

The more I searched for answers to what happened to me, the more perplexed I have become. The religious explanations lacked the logic and the science avoided the subject for the most part. Researchers of the Light experiences focused on issues such as uplifting stories, psychological impact and statistical data. I thought long about the event, and this is my take on the phenomenon, its explanation and meaning.

The origin of life is still not clear to us; whether it is native to our Solar System or seeded from elsewhere. We have not been able to create life even in its most basic form. Whatever the case may be with life's origin, our star is responsible for evolving and maintaining all organic life forms on Earth including plants, animals, humans. For all planets it is a vital source of light, warmth, balancing gravity. The Sun is the custodian of life on Earth and in my opinion, it is the source of conscious intelligence. The right physical, chemical and biological conditions are necessary but not sufficient conditions. For the life to emerge, it requires information environment that enables and supports the formation of cells. This process is closely connected to the development of individual souls, the Parent Soul, the Parent Star, and in the larger context - with the Parent Universe.

The Parent Soul is an emanation from the Sun, an intermediary between a soul and the Sun. The life on Earth progressed, in close coordination with our home star, from simple to complex systems. Just like water that evaporates from plants, comes back as rain to provide necessary moisture and nutrients, so the intelligent waves emanating from the Sun are circulating in a continuous interaction with organisms, providing guidance and assurance. This energy that assisted in the formation of cells, powers photosynthesis, shapes DNA structures, guides metabolism and reproduction. It is the life information matrix, a conscious being, separate from the organic matter as well as from the Sun.

The capacity for self organization allows the Parent Soul to expand its location. The Parent Soul realm is located in the vast swath of space between the Sun and Earth where the Solar energy can be used without interruptions. The trip to the Light Being during NDE takes just a few minutes. Part of the Light's extension follows the orbital movement around the Sun to maintain a constant distance from the Earth. The Parent Soul also takes advantage of the gravitational stability of Lagrange points and uses the protection of Earth's magnetosphere from cosmic radiation and solar storms.

This larger spiritual entity is not a miraculous, omnipotent being but a natural conscious life continuum that we are all a part of. The Parent Soul can not magically infuse us with its own intelligence, empathy and insight, it has to be earned by our own efforts.

3 Individual Soul Development

Autonomous beings like humans, use much more complex information than minerals or plants. Absorption a young soul energy at the end of a single life span by a larger community could be difficult. Additional incarnations may be employed to address this issue. A dramatic, often traumatic transition through an intermediate state and rebirth is described anecdotally by various religious and philosophical scriptures with considerable details. There are also other methods available to the higher order of beings besides incarnations to mature individual souls after a physical death.

The process of withdrawing a soul from the body is not painful. A feeling of numbness spreads slowly, starting from the extremities, until the connection is severed. For those who cannot adjust to the separation it could be a confusing and terrifying experience, so it is important to be mentally prepared. There are spiritual practices developed specifically for conscious and peaceful dying but more scientific studies are required to better understand or manage this process. Gradually all is engulfed by the ocean of clear, golden-white light emanating from the Parent Soul.

A detached soul retains major sense perceptions and cognitive functions like; seeing, hearing, thinking, feeling, memory, motion, orientation etc. With a body of the consistency compatible to the Sun it experiences light differently than an incarnated soul. It is not affected by extreme heat or blinded by light but perceives it as warmth and bliss. It is a downtime but also an important period for a life review, learning and play. A young soul is at home here, enjoying the company of the Parent Soul, relatives and friends.

After selecting appropriate parents the soul is send to an incarnation stage where it has a specific mission to accomplish. It is separated from the main group and transmitted into a physical body, its protective nursery. The Parent Soul is very much like our Earth parents with significant responsibilities overlap. Together they help an infant to establish itself and grow.

The Parent Soul patiently guides an individual until it reaches the level of knowledge and empathy that a unification is possible. Just like parents teach their children so eventually they can have an equal relationship. At some point a soul takes initiative, becomes stronger and wiser. It has to reach a certain maturity level to be able to remain permanently in the Parent Soul realm. During the course of an incarnation a soul may be briefly recalled for a partial life review, consultation and additional instructions that are later described as mystical experience, enlightenment or NDE. After all tasks are accomplished every soul returns safely and joins permanently with the Parent Soul with no one left out.

4 Suffering and Reunification

The assistance of the Light is carefully calibrated to maintain independent development of a soul. The learning process ensures a free choice which allows for making and rectifying mistakes. Infant souls are in a predicament of confusion and fear which often leads to resentment and strife. On a group scale it can cause wars or other serious abuses; that's why sometimes bad things happen to good people. This is a price for non-intervention and a free choice principle. It is difficult to resolve the suffering problem by science, philosophy or religion in the context of one life. There is the basic inconsistency between moral behavior, which is meant to make life "good" or worth living, with suffering of the noble and innocent. Many cruel, deceitful individuals are thriving materially and socially. It is true that conflict or aggression certainly decreases as the empathy in the society increases. A positive correlation between society empathy level and conflict resolution between individuals and groups may not be sufficient to explain why bad things happen to good people.

Understanding and overcoming suffering was proclaimed by the Buddha as the main goal of life in the Four Noble Truths. Similarly the Stoics "bear the suffering with equanimity and indifference". Job in the Torah had to overcome the physical and mental anguish before he could be fully reconciled with God. Jesus publicly demonstrated to his friends and foes a transcendent value in accepting and overcoming suffering. There is an individual account, known in the East as Karma, Christian Divine Judgment or Hebrew Cheshbon ha-Nefesh, that each of us has to wrestle with and balance before advancing to the next level. From this perspective, suffering that good, innocent people go through is no longer meaningless.

The conduct that leads to a reunification is fairly well known, although the science has not been applied here in a consistent fashion. Most philosophical and spiritual systems agree on the major tenets of what constitutes a noble life. The central theme is love and empathy towards others. Infant souls are very closely connected to each other in a parent-child or siblings relationships. Through introspection we gradually acquire the self knowledge that one is not a separate being but an integral part of a larger reality. Understanding and realizing this essential unity through unconditional love and compassion towards others, including non-humans, is a critical task during incarnation. This empathy brings a profound insight into the nature of the Universe and our role in it. Reduction of selfishness and development of altruism leads to "the extinction of ego" in the Eastern spirituality, that corresponds with "love of God with all your heart, all your soul, and all your might" in the Western monotheism.

Practical methods used to expand self identification with a larger reality are also well known: assisting others in need, scientific and philosophical inquiry, spiritual practice, prayers, meditations, appreciating beauty, love of nature etc.

5 The Parent Universe

The Parent Soul is a part of the natural world, concerned with propagation of life and developing enlightened souls, it did not create the World, is not in charge of it. Every planet in the Solar System has its own Parent Soul, quite different from ours. They coordinate their activities within and outside the Solar System. People noticed long time ago that there is some correspondence between terrestrial events and relative positions of the planets. This notion gave rise to astrology with its system of predicting the future, however without understanding of underlying principles it remained in the domain of pseudo-scientific speculations.

There are various soul formations at the level of individuals, parent souls, stars, galaxies, universes and multiverses, but it is essentially a living continuity. Like a small band of nomads sailing through a great ocean must rely on each other for support and comfort, close ties and cooperation are critical to the group survival. In a similar fashion every soul is precious in this brave project called life, traversing a boundless, eternal ocean of energy, filled with infinite manifested and unmanifested universes.

At each level, orders of beings have parents that love and guide their children. A baby doesn't need to have a proper understanding of how the parents operate and relate to each other to fit perfectly in the family. In the same way we don't need to understand immediately how the higher orders of beings operate and relate to each other to fit perfectly in this order. It is always the best to be prepared for a new assignment; it is no different with the enlightenment process. Our preparation for the next stage is to mature the soul by developing self-knowledge, empathy and insight into our role in the larger reality.
