

Online Resources

<https://naaee.org/eepro/groups/equity-and-inclusion>

NAAEE believes that considering a wide array of perspectives helps us be more effective and creates an environment that allows us to honor our diverse beliefs, attitudes, languages, interpersonal styles, and values. Whether you're looking to build inclusivity, respect, and equity in your program, seeking to employ the talents of people with different backgrounds, experiences, and perspectives to accomplish your goals, or simply want to recognize strides in creating a more culturally diverse field, this group provides a great outlet for discussing unique opportunities to increase our cross-cultural understanding and exchanges. The more diverse the audiences we work with, the stronger our movement will be. Come share your unique perspective!

Blogs:

<https://naaee.org/eepro/blog/these-are-few-our-favorite-things>

Inspired by "My Favorite Things"

Song by Oscar Hammerstein II and Richard Rodgers

What is your favorite thing to teach others about our planet?

<https://naaee.org/eepro/blog/its-all-about-connections>

It's All About the Connections!

Creek Connections, a watershed-based environmental education outreach program of Allegheny College in Meadville, Pennsylvania, has long been a part of a collaborative group in our community called Partners in Education (PiE).