The Cold Weather Rule applies to homeowners and renters who pay their own heat. Contrary to popular belief, the Cold Weather Rule is NOT a moratorium on utility disconnections. To keep your heat on or to reconnect your heat, you must contact your electric and/or natural gas company to make and keep a payment plan. FARMERS MARKET SNAP/EBT PROGRAM

Nothing says summer like the pop-up produce stands of our local farmers markets. They are a great option for high quality, locally grown produce at a low price. In addition, they provide organic 'farm to table' vegetables and fruits at the peak of freshness.

Each market is unique in what they have to offer. In addition to seasonal fruits and vegetables, you also might find booths selling meat, poultry, fish, eggs, dairy products, bread, cereals, jams, syrups, honey, rice, grains, pickles, and packaged pastries.

And did you know that many farmer's markets allow you to purchase using your EBT card? It is as easy as swiping your card for tokens that can be used in exchange for food purchased at the various booths. (Non-food items as well as immediately consumable food and drinks are not eligible for EBT purchase.)

Purchases will be rounded up to the nearest dollar. No change will be given, and vendors will not exchange tokens for money. Unspent tokens may be kept and used later. Cash refunds cannot be given for tokens and must be used by the end of the Farmer's Market season.

Below you will find a list of local markets that participate in the EBT program. And, more is added each year, so be sure to contact your local farmers' market to see their purchase options.

SUBSTANCE USE DISORDER AND RECOVERY RESOURCES

Recovery Community Organization (RCO)

A Recovery Community Organization (RCO) is devoted to providing services to and tearing down barriers for those suffering from a substance use disorder. It is a grassroots community-based organization staffed by people in recovery. It provides services free-of-charge to those seeking recovery and those who are affected by someone with a substance use disorder.

Why is this important?

In 1958 Bill Wilson, co-founder of the A.A. program, wrote the following, "From cradle to grave, the drunk and the potential alcoholic will have to be surrounded by true and deep understanding and by a continuous barrage of information: the facts about his illness, its symptoms, its grim seriousness. Why should an alcoholic have to wait until he is 55 and be horribly mangled to find out that he is a very sick man, when enough education of the right kind might have convinced him at 30 or 35?"

This was a radical statement back in 1958 and yet sixty years later we are still dealing with much of the ignorance and lack of awareness that Bill Wilson was addressing in the above quote. The stigma associated with a substance use disorder is still so pervasive that it prevents and inhibits thousands of people each year from seeking help.

According to the National Survey on Drug Use and Health (NSDUH), 19.7 million American adults (aged 12 and older) battled a substance use disorder in 2017. That same year, 1 out of every 8 adults struggled with both alcohol and drug use disorders simultaneously. Moreover, in 2017, 8.5 million American adults suffered from both a mental health disorder and a substance use disorder, also known as co-occurring disorders.

The emotional toll on our society cannot be overstated or adequately measured. However, according to the NSDUH drug abuse and addiction cost American society more than $740 billion annually in lost workplace productivity, healthcare expenses, and crime-related costs.

How can RCOs help?

A Recovery Community Organization raises awareness about recovery from a substance use disorder and aids those in recovery and those seeking recovery services. RCO staff work with mental health providers, faith-based organizations, treatment providers, recovery-oriented agencies, and 12-Step programs to broaden the safety net of recovery services.

According to Robert D. Ashford, a recovery researcher, an estimated 22 million Americans are currently in recovery from opioid and other addictions. This is a good news story that is seldom talked about on the news or social media.

We still have a long way to go in reducing the stigma associated with a substance use disorder and providing full and timely access to treatment services that are so sorely needed for our communities. However, with organizations like RCOs, we are making inroads to what Bill Wilson envisioned over sixty years ago.

The only way to ensure ignorance about recovery persists in our society, is for people in recovery to remain silent. RCOs are about recovering out loud. RCOs are open to multiple pathways to recovery and focus on an individual's quality of life. RCOs seek to complete rather than compete with treatment options or providers.
