

Our client is always looking for great talent and candidates with great spirit and a genuine desire to learn and be part of a team.

Based in San Jose, our client is a growing direct sales and marketing company, dedicated to helping non-profits, make the world a better place.

Through our direct sales and marketing strategies, we give clients the exposure to succeed. Our team is responsible for raising awareness on behalf of the non-profit clients we represent; across a variety of regional events, our strategies provide an on-the-ground presence that helps social change organizations get greater visibility. Our expertise and positive outlook inspire our audiences to take action.

Helping non-profits is more than a job. By generating sales sign-ups through regular contributions every cent generated has the power to make a positive impact on the lives of others.

We offer support through virtual classroom training and face-to-face sessions; our hands-on training will provide you with client knowledge and sales skills needed. Throughout your career, you will always have the continuing support and encouragement of your fellow peers and company leaders. Those team members who exhibit leadership skills and a strong work ethic will be provided with further opportunities to grow themselves and the business.

You will play a key role as part of our sales team. Our team is responsible for fundraising at organized events, speaking to as many people to spread the great charitable feats of the non-profits we represent. You will be surrounded by quality individuals like yourself, in a fun, supportive environment which challenges you to learn and grow.
