500-job parts plant expected at AMC site

Duggan comments come after report linked GM to site

> BY MELISSA NANN BURKE AND RILEY BEGGIN The Detroit News

Washington — Detroit Mayor Mike Duggan said Wednesday the city is "about to land" a 500job auto parts plant on the site of the former American Motors Corp. headquarters site on Plymouth Road on Detroit's west side.

"We are about to land another 500-employee parts plant, and what the federal government has done has given us a whole range of tools to bring jobs — good-paying jobs — back to the city," Duggan said of the former AMC site. "We're knocking down the 40year-old, abandoned building over there. We'll have another parts plant there, and we're in conversation with several other manufacturers."

Duggan spoke to The Detroit News after meeting with Biden administration officials at the White House about how the city has been spending pandemic relief funds from the American Rescue Plan and about the benefits of recent legislation to fund clean energy, infrastructure and domestic semiconductor chip manufacturing.

The mayor wouldn't share other details about the pending deal for the 500 jobs at the former AMC site, but Crain's Detroit last month reported that General Motors Co. was in talks to become the tenant of a new 761,000-

Lawsuit claims permanent scarring, blurred vision after arrest

BY HANNAH MACKAY The Detroit News

Attorneys for a Black teenager have filed a federal lawsuit and are seeking upward of $20 million against the city of Warren, its police department and six officers after the teen was beaten, stomped on, left bloodied and injured by arresting officers during a June traffic stop.

The officers arrested Tyler Wade, who was 17 at the time, on June 2 after they pursued a car he was driving that was reported stolen, said his attorney. James King. Body camera footage shows the stop and arrest, including multiple officers pulling the teen from a white sedan and striking him repeat-

King said he believes race played a role in the incident and noted it appears all but one of the officers involved are White.

"What troubles me the most is that people in the city of Warren have committed far worse crimes than what Tyler was alleged of committing," King said. "Unfortunately, they don't look like Tyler, so they're not treated the same way upon ar-

Gov rivals in lagging Mich. pitch job plans

State falls behind neighbors in rebuilding economy after pandemic disruption

> BY CRAIG MAUGER AND RILEY BEGGIN The Detroit News

Lansing - Michigan has struggled to recover jobs that were lost because of the CO-VID-19 pandemic and has fallen behind its neighbors in rebuilding its labor force during Democratic Gov. Gretchen Whitmer's first term in office, according to federal jobs data.

The numbers from the federal Bureau of Labor Statistics, which show Michigan has dropped 81,900 jobs from December 2018 to August 2022 and its overall labor force has shrunk by about 99,000 people, have already become a factor in this fall's race to lead the state for the next four years.

At 7 p.m. Thursday, Whitmer need to in Lansing." will face off against Republican first televised debate in Grand Rapids - and Whitmer's economic record and Dixon's job creation plans are likely to be hot topics on the debate stage.

Michigan's aging population and smaller share of residents with bachelor's degrees or specialized training have created $economic \, vulnerabilities \, for \, the \,$ state, said Don Grimes, a regional economic specialist at the University of Michigan. Job and wage growth has been centered in industries requiring higher levels of educational attainment, he said.

"Michigan is lagging behind the human capital side of this equation," Grimes said. "To be frank, I don't think they've recognized this as much as they

Parents offer helping hand after losing son

Swimmer Ian Miskelley took his own life in 2020, two weeks before his 20th birthday.

Initiative seeks ways to make mental health care 'be better'

> BY TONY PAUL The Detroit News

Holland — There were many times, too many times, throughout his nearly 20-year life when Ian Miskelley, who began seeing a therapist when he was 11 and long suffered from depression and mental illness, struggled mightily to find self-satisfaction, or happiness, no matter how good things seemed to be going.

Once, at a prestigious youth swim meet, Miskelley won his race, but his time wasn't his best, and he was down.

"Ian," a coach said afterward, "what would make you happy?"

"I don't know," Ian said.

Ian, amid all his own battles and pains, did have a special knack for making others around him feel better, however.

In 2008, a tree fell on the Miskelleys' two-year-old home. The damage was significant, and during a trip to the grocery store with Ian, his mother, Jill, found herself standing in the parking lot, practically paralyzed by the stress. Ian, 7, looked up and grabbed Mom's hand.

Years later, while he was a student and swimmer at the University of Michigan, Ian was delivering groceries via Shipt, and once went to check out, only to discover the customer's payment wasn't able to go through. He called Meijer; they said call
