With an extensive background in mission critical, medical/dental, general office construction and tradeshow exhibit projects in the U.S. A., a world of useful and hard to find products have revealed themselves in the crooks and crannies of these markets. RSC (Russell Scott Corp.) has access to many products that have been hiding in plain sight for years just waiting for the right use.

With focus on renewable products and more energy efficiency in development and production of such facilities, these products need to be exploited and put to good use. Builders, designers, engineers, oil production owners and operators must all be opened to the use and implementation of such products and more and more companies are. With the conscious efforts to reduce carbon footprint and increased P.U.E. (Public Utility Efficiency) comes the profitability of the knowledge and use of these resources.

RSC was formed to help owner, operators and construction and engineer professionals achieve these goals by having access to products that help accomplish this goal while providing added value to the facility or project.

The mission: to locate, research and test as many products as possible that already exist and are yet to come, in order to make them available to the market for use in the appropriate arenas. In addition to provide product manufacturers, designers and specifiers end users that can best benefit from their resources

If there are specific needs for something out of the box to accomplish the goals of these professionals, RSC can be the conduit to source just the right products and services for the job.

No frills, no thrills with this company, just resources and users formed from an alignment of partners in various industries that are willing to share knowledge and ask questions. We can assist with everything from detailed specifications, product reviews and services such as shipping, manufacturing and installation of resources across the globe.

Don't be mistaken. We are not an AliBaba or Craigs List with catalogued products or goods for sale. We are a consulting firm that works with you as a partner to locate, investigate and evaluate the best function of products and services provided among our partners for your project.
