The Clark Virtual Museum introduces a New Exhibit “Great Black Architects”

As summer draws to a close and students return to their schools, colleges and universities, it’s a good time for us all to reflect on the Black pioneers of architecture and design. These talented men and woman have built many of America’s educational institutions, homes and buildings. Our new exhibit “Great Black Architects” recognizes the work of some of America’s most renowned Black builders and architects including Paul Revere Williams, Robert Robinson Taylor, Beverly Lorraine Greene, McKissack and McKissack, Ottawa W. Gurley, Vertner Tandy, and Julian Abele.
