

The 29th Annual “Asia Today” Series Spring 2015: China, Korea, ASEAN, Asia-Pacific

Prof. Richard Hornik

Dr. Deane Neubauer

Dr. R. Anderson Sutton

Dr. Karl Kim

Dr. James Dator

The annual “Asia Today” Series this year took place over four weekends instead of the usual three. These lectures were very well-received, and the audience gave glowing reviews of the talks. This Series is one of CAPE’s longest-running offerings, and continues to meet with applause from its attendees.

Beginning on April 25, Professor Richard Hornik delivered an “excellent presentation” on economic innovation and social media issues in modern China, and how its powerful government control is affecting the development of each.

The 31st Workshop for Elementary Teachers of English

(January 19 – February 15, 2015)

The workshop for elementary teachers in this winter session hosted a group of twelve from Seoul, sent under the auspices of Sookmyung Women's University. Some participants visited Lunalilo Elementary School, and we thank Principal Amy Kantrowitz for the opportunity. Others went to Puuhale Elementary School or Queen Kaahumanu Elementary, and we likewise are grateful to Principals Miki St. Laurent and Christopher Daly. The UH faculty that spoke to this group included Dr. Graham Crookes, Dr. Christina Higgins, Dr. Sandra McKay, and Dr. Richard Schmidt; the instructors for their supplementary courses were Ms. Eriza Bareng, Ms. Junko Imai, and Mr. Myron Monte.

The 107th Workshop for Asian-Pacific Teachers of English

(Dec 27, 2014 – Jan 24, 2015)

English teachers in the 107th Workshop for Asian-Pacific Teachers of English, with Dr. Sandra McKay & Ms. Bonnie Sylwester, January 2015

In the first CAPE Winter session program, seven secondary English teachers from Jeonbuk Province in South Korea, supported by the Jeonbuk Office of Education, came to participate in a month-long teacher training program. During their stay, these teachers attended lectures on practical and theoretical pedagogy, led by UH faculty including Dr. Graham Crookes, Dr. Richard Day, and Dr. Elizabeth Gilliland; and they also had a few lessons on culture and teaching techniques taught by Ms. Eriza Bareng and Ms. Bonnie Sylwester respectively to hone their skills. The capstone of their program were visits to Niu Valley Middle School and Kaimuki High School. School Principals Mr. Sean Tajima and Mr. Wade Araki made these visits possible, and we thank them and the teachers and students at their schools for their kind hospitality.

The 108th Workshop for Asian-Pacific Teachers of English

(Jan 19 – Feb 15, 2015)

A second group of eleven teachers came from Seoul, South Korea, to attend the workshop. They were supported by Sookmyung Women's University, and stayed a month for the intensive program. They visited Kalakaua Middle School, hosted by Principal Lorelei Aiwohi; and Washington Middle School, where Principal Michael Harano welcomed them. They spent the remainder of their time attending talks on foreign language education and acquisition delivered by such UH faculty as Dr. Christina Higgins and Dr.

English teachers in the 108th Workshop for Asian-Pacific Teachers of English, with Ms. Priscilla Faucette & Dr. Sandra McKay, January 2015.

Sandra McKay, Mr. Kenton Harsch, Ms. Priscilla Faucette, and Ms. Angela Haeusler, taught their teaching techniques courses, while Mr. Myron Monte led a special session. CAPE appreciates all the work and support of these teachers who make these programs possible.

The 109th Workshop for Asian-Pacific Teachers of English

(Jan 26 – Feb 11, 2015)

A third Workshop consisting of twenty-five graduate students from the International Graduate School of English attended our annual two-week workshop in January and February, chaperoned by Mr. Steven Jay Smith. Their syllabus included special school visits to Aina Haina Elementary School (Principal Brendan Burns); Ala Wai Elementary School (Principal Sean Wong); Jarrett Middle School (Principal Raelene Chock); and

Mid-Pacific Institute Elementary School (Principal Edna Hussey). As always, participants described these school visits as the highlight of their experience in Hawaii, and we owe thanks to the school principals, teachers, and students for the opportunity. The two-week program also included pedagogy and learning theory lectures delivered by UH faculty including Dr. Hanh Thi Nguyen and Dr. Richard Schmidt, as well as a special session led by Mr. Myron Monte.

The 110th Workshop for Asian-Pacific Teachers of English

(Jan 28 – Feb 19, 2015)

the Kwangju Office of Education. They were chaperoned by Ms. Hwanna Lee. During the time they were in Honolulu, they visited Dole Middle School, Farrington High School, and the University Lab School. We and they thank the principals of these schools, respectively, Ms. Tiare Uli'i, Mr. Alfredo Carganilla, and

Mr. Keoni Jeremiah. As ever, workshop participants received both pedagogical lectures from UH faculty, as well as other special lessons.

The 65th International Program for College Nursing Students

(January 20 – February 2, 2015)

A group of ten nursing students from Cha Medical University in South Korea came for CAPE's landmark program aimed at giving future nurses a look at Hawaii's medical services. They visited Leahi Hospital, Maunalani Nursing & Rehab Center, and the Queen's Medical Center; we are deeply grateful to hosts Gail Okamura, Sai Chantavy, Cecile Morris, and Makana McClellan for their unflinching support and invitation to these students. In addition to site visits, these students attended lectures on nursing issues given by UH faculty and affiliated faculty, including Dr. John Casken, Dr. Estelle Codier, and Dr. Patricia Nishimoto. Lecture topics were diverse, and covered nursing and healthcare issues in Hawaii and the U.S., the roles of RNs, CNSs, and Nurse Practitioners, and leadership in nursing. The nursing students' Hawaiian/American culture classes were led by Ms. Aileen Moriwake.

The 66th International Program for College Nursing Students

(January 12 – February 7, 2015)

A second, month-long nursing program hosted twenty-one nursing students from Chungang University, South Korea. Chaperoned by Dr. Inok Shim, they visited Kaiser Permanente (host Laurene Chun); Maluhia Hospital (Lydia Chock); Maunalani Nursing & Rehab Center (Sai Chantavy and Cecile Morris); Queen's Medical Center (Cyndi Kitkowski and Makana McClellan); Pali Momi Medical Center (Brigitte McKale); and Kapiolani Medical Center for Women & Children (Betty Karratti). We thank these hosts for giving our student participants the opportunity to visit these facilities. This group of nurses also took special lectures from Dr. Patricia Nishimoto, Dr. John Casken, Dr. Estelle Codier, and Dr. Verna Hanashiro. Their English and American culture classes were taught by Mr. Mark McGrath and Mr. Christopher Hunter.

29th Annual Asia Today Series

On May 2, Dr. Deane Neubauer talked about how higher education especially is undergoing a period of great change in all of Asia. He also addressed the kinds of challenges ASEAN—the Association of South East Asian Nations—countries face in their quest for economic and political development. The audience enjoyed his articulate and informed lecture, and commented on how much they learned from him.

The session on May 9 featured ethno-musicologist Dr. R. Anderson Sutton discussing the history of his field and the kinds of issues it deals with. Dr. Sutton also gave an intriguing lecture on his specialty, Korean musical traditions, which include modern fusion music. His audience, some of whom had never heard of this field before, followed his comments with great interest and a great sense of learning.

Finally, on May 16, Dr. Karl Kim spoke to a deeply interested audience about disaster response planning, using recent events in Hawaii and the Asia-Pacific region to illustrate best practices of such work. He was followed by Dr. James Dator analyzing the South Korean economic miracle and its future, and how other nations might emulate it in their own search for economic prosperity without suffering political collapse.

teach a few important expressions such as greetings and introductions, while also explaining various cultural practices and linguistic features of Korean.

On the second Saturday (November 7), Dr. Cynthia Ning will lead the discussion on the cultural setting of Mandarin Chinese. Using edited video footage, she will teach some greetings and polite language, and end with longer clips focusing on Chinese martial arts, and on Islam in China.

The final session on November 14 will cover the language and culture of Japan. The speaker, Dr. Mitsue Tabata-Sandom, will teach a few essential elements of Japanese language, and provide a glimpse of Japanese culture by giving participants hands-on experiences of bowing, playing a chopsticks game, and trying their hand at the art of calligraphy.

AN ESSAY

Teachers of English*

Classroom Observation

I have observed a special education class today and last Friday. The class on Friday was a chorus class. They learned how to read lyrics and sing a song. There were four students and two educational assistants. One girl could not move without an assistant's help. They seemed to show their feelings, but I could not tell whether they understood or not. The class I observed today was a language arts class. They did a fishbowl discussion, which is one of my favorite in-class activities that I have seen here. I think it is a student-centered activity and very active. They were shy but did their best. It seems like they do reading and keep Cornell notes just as other ordinary students do. I was curious about evaluating their progress. Even though what they can do falls behind what other ordinary students do, it is still meaningful that they make achievement. I was impressed by the fact that special education is treated as important as regular education here in Hawaii. Even though more human resources are required for special education, people seem to accept it. In Korea, investing budget to elite groups is considered efficient because they produce the best result. People have a consensus that minorities sometimes have to sacrifice for majorities. I am used to this efficiency-oriented way of thinking. However, I try to think in a different way. What if my son or daughter is disabled, and never gets an opportunity for quality education? It is tragic. I think Americans strongly believe that every citizen has the right to be educated no matter what, which I admire.

IN MEMORIAM

Mr. Curtis Fujio Zane
March 17, 1965 – June 12, 2015

Mr. Curtis Zane passed away at Queen's Medical Center on June 12, 2015 at the age of 50. He left us too soon! Many of our CAPE family were shocked to learn about his demise and were in deep sorrow.

Mr. Curtis Zane served as a volunteer for CAPE beginning in his high school days. His service continued in his college days and after, even while he was working. He did so much in so many ways for CAPE and its programs over the decades. He extended unselfish contributions and warm aloha to CAPE participants from many Asian countries. He touched the hearts of many of our student participants, especially those from Asia! His memory will remain in their hearts in the years to come. Our immeasurable thanks are due to him. Our hearts go out to his family in this time of sorrow. We pray for him to rest in peace in heaven.
