Golf

Eons ago the great glaciers stopped their forward movement and began to recede. Where they stopped they pushed up large hills of earth and created areas referred to as terminal moraine. One such area north of Stony Plain is known as the Glory Hills and is home to Glacier Greens Par 3 Golf Course.

Glacier Greens is an executive par 3 golf course located on the south slope of the Glory Hills, only minutes north of Stony Plain, Alberta. These hills and ponds create the landscape for a beautiful, challenging round of golf.

Many of the 18 holes have multiple tees, which by the very nature of a par 3, change those holes dramatically. On a par 3, different tee locations invariably bring a completely different club into play.

Glacier Greens was built to emulate the larger championship courses. The terrain includes playing across deep valleys, through chutes, up hills, down hills, across water and over trees.
