IMPORTANT TAX INFORMATION

A major change to scholarship grants resulting from the Tax Reform Act of 1986 is that grants made “in excess” of what is needed for tuition, fees, books, supplies, and equipment required for a course of instruction at the education institution will be taxable. Amounts used for room and board are now taxable to the scholarship recipient.

Neither the grantor nor the educational organization attended by the recipient is required to file any information returns such as Form 1099 or W-2 (consult notice 87-31, I.R.B. 1987-17 13.)

Any amount of the scholarship grant which is includable as income by the recipient will be considered earned income (thus qualifying for the standard deduction by a recipient who is a dependent of another) but, unless services are performed as a condition of the grant, will not be subject to FICA or self-employment taxes.
