A new pair of properly fitted shoes for vulnerable children can:

- provide physical protection
- improve physical health
- boost self-esteem and confidence
- ensure school attendance by providing a sense of dignity and belonging.

STORY:

My daughter volunteered and was assigned a day to hang out with the kids from a family facing homelessness. There was a girl there her own age (about 13). After the experience, my daughter said, “The girl was so excited about her new shoes she just got today. She kept showing them to me, looking at them, telling me how cute they were. Mom, they were just a regular pair of red canvas shoes, but she was so happy to have a new pair of shoes. I take too much for granted.” Both girls were changed by a pair of shoes.
