

Rabbit Resistant Plants

We've all had a time or two when we went out to our garden and saw that our plants had been damaged by something overnight. Suddenly your perfect garden is filled with missing plants or those with eaten tops. To avoid seeing your beautiful garden damaged by rabbits you can try to deter them with rabbit repellants, fences, and by removing brush piles where they live. You can also avoid these problems by planting rabbit resistant plant varieties. Below you will find a list of annuals, perennials, and shrubs that are seldom damaged by rabbits and carried here at Schalow's Nursery.

Figure 1 Rabbit damage on an annual or perennial plant

Figure 2 Rabbit Damage on Shrubs

Annuals

- Ageratum
- Wax Begonia
- Marigold
- Vinca
- Geranium
- Petunia

Perennials

- Bugleweed
- Allium
- Agastache
- Blue Star
- Anemone
- Butterfly Weed
- Astilbe
- Beard Tongue
- Bee Balm
- Black-Eyed Susan
- Blanket Flower
- Bleeding Heart
- Candytuft
- Catmint
- Columbine
- Daylily
- False Indigo
- Geranium
- Geum
- Ice Plant
- Iris
- Lab's ear
- Lungwort

- Maiden Grass
- Lavender
- Phlox
- Pincushion flower
- Poppy
- Russian Sage
- Salvia
- Sedum
- Snow-in-Summer
- Speedwell
- Coreopsis
- Goat's Beard
- Bugbane
- Foxglove
- Shasta Daisy
- Cardinal Flower
- Peony

Shrubs and Trees

- Boxwood
- Tartarian Dogwood
- Cotoneaster
- Smooth Hydrangea
- Inkberry
- Potentilla
- Azalea
- Rhododendron
- Yew

Edible Plants

- Basil
- Oregano
- Onion
- Summer Squash
- Mint
- Parsley
- Rhubarb
- Tomato
- Potato
- Grape