Stenhøj have been producing high quality presses since 1932. They can be supplied as a standard press, or modified to suit the customer's requirements.

Stenhøj can offer both workshop and production presses.

Workshop Presses

These are modern workshop presses, which are both strong and reliable for all requirements. All of the models are delivered with a generous workspace and a double-acting cylinder.

FlexiPress:

These presses are available between 25 ton and 200 ton in the Flexipress range. Apart from the standard models, Stenhøj produce an increasing number of semi-standard and customised solutions. For these applications, the standard components are modified to fit even the most demanding purposes.

Bench Press:

The Bench Press, with its functional design and simple operation, is considered to be the most up-to-date and versatile press on the market for service and repair shops.

Production Presses

These presses range from 25 Ton to 500 Ton, in an H-Frame or C-Frame design. They are available in many different sizes and with lots of features.

H-Frame:

The H-Frame presses have a modular design, therefore the presses can be individually adapted to the specific requirements of our customers. This flexibility is available right from the lower priced simpler presses, up to complex high tech systems. This means only as much 'machine' as the user requires.

C-Frame:

The stable C-Frame presses are excellently suited to continuous operations in everyday production. The robust welded construction form enables optimal access in the working area. Using the large selection of available accessories, the machine can be adapted to various requirements.

Spare Parts - We can supply all spare parts for Stenhøj Presses, as well as the following presses detailed in this brochure.
