Sound Waves #6: Blue Line is moving away from the static graphic lines earlier in the series. Leaf-like images emerge along with bursts of abstract forms. Teal, yellows, and splashes of fuchsia are the predominate colors in this piece. Muted versions of other colors float and merge within the piece upon closer inspection.

Undulating waves of hand stitched thread create interesting shadows and light play across the artwork. The work is specifically designed to be displayed in any orientation, vertical or horizontal, which makes it a versatile display piece.
