Hand Stitched Thread on Hand Dyed Textile

Sound Waves #4: Red Line references back to the first two pieces in the series, with the graphic lines and references to oscilloscopes and seismograph printouts. Yellow and black are the predominate colors in this piece with the dynamic addition of a dark, bold red. Muted versions of other colors float and merge within the piece upon closer inspection.

Mysterious images emerge from the bands of black: a torso of a person, wings of a bat or bird, outlines of bushes, etc. Wave-like hand stitching across the artwork creates interesting light and shadow play. The work is specifically designed to be displayed in any orientation, which makes it a versatile display piece.
