The fourth piece in this series is constructed from the leftover scraps from the framing (binding) of artworks from 1998 through 2020. Pieced strips of scraps are cut into 60° diamond shapes and laid out within a grid format with cream and gold oriental fabric. This artwork is heavily hand stitched in different directions in alternating diamonds to add visual and physical texture. It can be exhibited in several different orientations, with the vertical orientation (41" x 76"/104 x 193cm) being the most dramatic and compelling. A contemporary artwork that melds well into most environments, makes it a versatile piece.
