

Live Streaming

Having the ability to live stream our investigations and internet shows gives the viewers the chance to decide for themselves what is possible. At the same time, because most of our investigations and live talks are interactive, people have the ability to actually participate in real time which can seriously enhance the understanding and authenticity of the work being performed. We constantly encourage viewers to help debunk possible activity and of course witness any possible anomalies as they occur.

During one such live streamed investigation and rare phenomenon occurred. After a client was attacked (not physically harmed) and steps were under way to cleanse the house...with the camera still live, one of our investigators became part of a mysterious phenomenon. As she entered the basement viewer could hear the sound of voices telling her to get out. The closer she moved towards the location of the camera, the louder the voices grew! Though the voices were loud and obviously agitated to the viewers, the team member could not hear anything! There was no app or other pieces of equipment on at the time that could have caused such a crazy phenomenon to occur. Only when a viewer messaged her, did she realize what was happening. As she quickly walked out of the basement, the angry voices died away. For the viewers this would have been considered disembodied voices. For the investigator reviewing the audio afterwards, this would have been considered EVPs. So what category does this evidence fall into? Simply awesome by our accounts!

On many occasions, people watching the live feeds have witnessed something unexplained. After each of these videos is finished they are posted and an unedited version remains on our page through Facebook or YouTube. Even then, many people will go back and review these unedited videos and find excellent EVPs and ITCs along with other unexplained activity.

Often times, at the client's discretion, these live feeds give people with abilities from around the world a chance to provide their own insight to the location. Without fail, the clients sit by, blown away that these talented people from around the world provide details about events that have been experienced in their home that have never been disclosed to anyone. This is another form of credibility that this investigative structure brings to the field.
